PIERRE HAS ROASTED FOR YOU A TURKEY

Four Hundred Hungry Students Wanted at Union

THIS EVENING

Soup, Salads, Cranberries, Peas, Potatoes, Pies, Pastry and Ice Cream

Throughout the entire fall term, and since the Christmas vacation, the Union Cafeteria has ever succeeded in their attempt to give "dollar for dollar" service to its patrons. Special attractions have been numerous. Jazz teas have given ample entertainment to the boys while they spent a social half-hour, talking, laughing and smoking, over a well-made cup of tea. But the management have not ceased to serve, and the "best is yet to be" yet to be enjoyed. How? — Why, with the Big Turkey Dinner To-night. Turkey—real Turkey, right from the farm, just as Pierre ordered just as Pierre roasted and just as Pierre shall serve.

Roasted with care served without spare with cranberries, delicious and sweet, which you're just meant to eat. Then there are peas small green peas, funny little peas, many on a plate, "Don't come too late and remember, 'BY USING A MEAL TICKET, YOU, SAVE TEN PER CENT.'"

And after the peas there's a salad, a waldorf salad, Pierre's salad, which being interpreted means, "Cabbage Salad".

Pierre has baked pies, many many pies. Everyone has his choice. He that ventures may choose well, and French Pastry may be had, real French Pastry, rich, made from the best, rich for the poor, and nothing too good for the Irish.

How incomplete would be a dinner, a high class dinner with only a choice of two desserts, even though perfect they might be. Pierre knew this. That is why he has Ice Cream—Ice Cream—"figurez-vous"! That cool creamy compound which in summer revives one from the sweltering heat, and in winter does so much toward admitting one's stomach to the cool cruel chilly currents of air which beset themselves upon one.

It can be had upon the pie, to eat along with the French Pastry, which in turn, shall accompany the drinking of the coffee, or the sipping of the tea, it's to-day, to-night, at the Union, the Turkey Dinner, for fifty cents, and one can save ten percent by using his meal ticket, and Pierre says, "Don't Forget," — and — "Come one. DR. H. M. AMI TO LECTURE BEFORE CLUB

Noted Anthropologist to Speak on Recent Discoveries

WENT TO MCGILL

Interesting Remains Discovered Lately in Central France

This afternoon at five o'clock, Dr. H. M. Ami, noted geologist and paleontologist, will lecture in Convocation Hall, at the Royal Victoria College, under the auspices of the McGill Canadian Club, on "Prehistoric Man in Recent Discoveries."

Dr. Henri Marc Ami was born at Belle Riviere, near this city, in 1868. His father was the Rev. Marc Ami of Geneva, Switzerland, and his mother came from Montbéliard, Doubs, France. In 1892, he married the daughter of the late Mr. George B. Birkland of this city. He received his primary education through private tuition and at the Ottawa Public and Grammar Schools. In 1877 Dr. Ami entered McGill, and studied under the late Sir William Dawson. He graduated with the degree of B. A. in 1882, and in 1885 with that of M. A. He has since become one of our most prominent graduates. He served on the technical staff of the Canadian Geological Survey from the time of his departure from McGill in 1912, when he was transferred to the Trade Department of the British.

LECTURES ON MENACE OF FOREST FIRE

Need of Educational Propaganda Urged

BROADCASTED

Children of Thirteen Had Never Seen a Tree

"Politicians think more of keeping themselves in power, than in taking steps to prevent forest fires," said Mr. Ellwood Wilson of the Laurentide Pulp and Paper Company in the course of an address delivered before the Montreal Branch of the Society of Chemical Industry last night in the Lecture Theatre of the Chemistry & Mining Building. The meeting of the society which was open to the public was attended by a large number of science students and others connected with the University. Besides Mr. Wilson, the gathering was addressed by Mr. Robson Black, of the Canadian Forestry Association, Ottawa, and by Professor Hosmer, of the Dept. of Forestry, Cornell University, while Mr. H. J. Vennes of the Northern Electric Co., which broadcasted the addresses, described the value of portable radio in combating the menace of forest fires.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Wilson stressed the fundamental importance of forestry among Canadian industries of to-day and to-morrow. "Agriculture, while perhaps being the basis of industry, is to a large extent dependent upon the products of our forests, and upon the labour which they provide for a large part of our agricultural population during the winter months," said the speaker.

"To keep colonists and immigrants which are so vitally needed, in the country, our forest products and the employment which their manufacture afforded must be conserved. To perpetuate the great pulp and paper industry our forest reserves must be maintained intact. The greatest enemy of the forest is fire, and about ninety per cent of the forest fires are caused by human agency. They are due to carelessness, and they are preventable." These were a few of the facts which Mr. Wilson drove forcibly home to his hearers. The best method, in his opinion, to combat the fire, was to prevent it by educating the public up to a proper appreciation of the value of Canada's forests, and to enforce upon them the need of care. The means of preventing fire wastage is directly in the hands of the people, and public opinion can force the politicians to take adequate (Continued on page 3)

STUDENTS SPEAK IN CITY CHURCH

McGill Students Tell Douglas Methodist Congregation of Indianapolis Conference

A service of particular interest to McGill students took place at Douglas Methodist Church Sunday when the usual form of evening service was supplemented by addresses by two members of the McGill delegation that went to the recent student Volunteer Conference at Indianapolis.

The first speaker was Miss Winifred Griffin of Arts '26 who told of the spirit of this conference and of the people that met together. She gave briefly some of the opinions that had been given the students by the Chinese and Indian students and by others from foreign countries. Perhaps the main theme of all these was that: what these countries were crying for was not Creeds or so called Christianity but just the simple truths of Christ.

Wendel McLeod Arts '26 then gave a most interesting address on the nature of this conference. He told of the innovation that had been introduced this year in this discussion—groups that had been formed. He summed up briefly the various opinions that had come forth on such subjects as "Equality of the Races"; "The probability and prevention of war" and "Western civilization in Asia." His address was brought to a close by a call to the people of the church for a closer cooperation with students so it may be easier for all to live the Christian life.

A NOTED MCGILL GRADUATE TO SPEAK

The first Canadian Club meeting for the new term will be held this afternoon at five o'clock in the Royal Victoria College and undergraduates will have the privilege of listening to one of McGill's outstanding graduates. Dr. St. M. Ami, of Ottawa, is the speaker for to-day and he will deliver an illustrated address on "Prehistoric Man in Recent Discovery." This is a subject which has been attracting wide-spread attention in American and European Educational circles and results of considerable importance have been obtained during the past few years. France has proved a fertile hunting ground for the anthropological scholar and searchers have made discoveries of great moment even in recent months. It is in this area that Dr. Ami has been working and he will without the slightest doubt, place before those who are wise enough to attend the very latest achievements in this branch of science.

But though to-day's meeting will be interesting because of the subject, it will be equally interesting because of the speaker. Dr. Ami will pay particular attention to his audience because he himself is a McGill graduate, having obtained his B.A. and M.A. degrees from here in 1882 and 1885. And when a graduate returns to his Alma Mater, if only for a day, his mind goes back to his undergraduate years, and there is established automatically a bond of common interest between himself and those with whom he comes in contact.

Since leaving McGill, to-day's speaker has acquired many degrees and honours including those of D.Sc., F.R.S., F.R.S.C., and F.R.G.S. He is one of McGill's greater graduates and we shall do well to give him a fitting welcome this afternoon.

BE A CREDIT TO YOUR ALMA MATER

There are two ways of going through university, and they are quite distinct from one another. The first way is to go through for the sake of the knowledge that is to be gained, and the second is to go for some knowledge and a little of that very intangible thing that leaves a man broadened and stamps him as having 'education.' At the first glance it would seem that the only difference between these two is that the second is the first with something added. This is not the case. If a student is going to take part in college activities outside the realm of his studies, his studies are bound to suffer to some extent. What he gains from his activities is somewhat offset by what he loses in academic work. When a student enters into as many things as his studies will allow he is gaining experience that in after life will aid him no matter what his work. He learns how to mix, how to play the game, how to stand, it may be, a sudden popularity without losing his head, and finally, he gets to know the real meaning of responsibility. This last is something that cannot be picked up by the man who uses books alone. It is true he feels that a certain duty is owed to himself and to his professor but how does he feel towards his fellows? Does he recognize that he owes something to them also? He should. If there is anything a student can do that will help those who are sharing the university with him it is up to him to do that thing. And there is something for all to do. If a man plays a game, if he is on his class executive, if he is a member of a college club of any kind, he is taking part. We are thankful that there are few students at McGill that "don't take part," but there are some, and there are others who are not doing their full share. Are you one? If you are, climb out of the rut and be a credit to your university.

R.V.C. '25 ELECT YEAR DEBATERS

Miss Gurd and Miss England Uphold Juniors

Representatives for the final inter-class debate were elected by the R. V. C. Juniors at a meeting which was held yesterday. Two very capable representatives were chosen to act in this capacity in Miss Jean Gurd and Miss Esther England. Miss Gurd distinguished herself in the Women's Intercollegiate Debate in Kingston this year.

The first two debates of the Inter-class series were held last session by the Delta Sigma Society. The Junior team represented by Miss Perrin and Miss Eardley succeeded in taking the laurels from the Seniors. In a debate between the Freshettes and Juniors, the Freshettes emerged victorious. Now the Juniors will contend in wordy battle with the Freshettes.

The time and subject of the debate will be announced later. Because of the importance of the issue at stake in acquiring a point toward the banner, it is expected that everyone will be greatly interested and the Juniors should turn out en masse to lend their moral support to their representatives on this auspicious occasion. An entertaining as well as interesting hour is assured to all and it is hoped all Juniors will respond to this call.

AMERICAN COLLEGE LIFE

"It seems to me that American college life is to a terrible extent a distracted life," writes Herbert Gray, the Scotch minister, in a letter of which extracts were published in the Hunter College Bulletin for December 6. "Your boys and girls disengage their intense vitality by touching lightly a multitude of things. The name of your college activities is legion. Your students don't work too hard, but they put in some work at too many things—picking up 'credits' here and there in a variegated manner, and over-filling the residue of life with athletic, social, dramatic, literary, musical, and other miscellaneous activities."

"And this seems to me educationally disastrous. There is plenty of time in life to learn many things and engage in many activities after college days. But at that time in life a man is meant to learn two things—the power of concentrated study and thought and the power of self-mastery. If education does not help him to these, it has failed."

THE CAPITOL

A sixty-five year old woman with the physical charms she had possessed in her early twenties, retored by a scientific treatment of rejuvenation is a dramatic situation which holds immense possibilities. And the possibilities of such a situation are fully realized in the scenery version of "Black Oxen," at the Capitol Theatre this week.

In the cinema dramatization, Gertrude Atherton's novel has not been much altered. Some people may call this a fault but the majority will rightly disagree with them. The plausibility of Leo Claverling's arrival at the Woman's house as the elderly spinster is leaving and similar touches shows clever and well-placed study.

The story is briefly this. Mary Ogden, a youthful leader in New York society married an Austrian, Count Zatlany. Having lost soon all affection for her husband she lived apart from him and busied herself in European Court intrigues. Though all men were interested in her she cared for none until she met an Austrian prince. But Prince Hohenhauer for diplomatic reasons had to marry another. Then came the war which left the Countess a frail old lady with a desire to rebuild Austria. To enable her to do this, she underwent treatment to restore her youth. Going back to arrange her affairs in America her beauty created a sensation among the fashionable circles. Leo Claverling, a dramatic critic and playwright, was very interested in her and in his attachment for her centres the interest of the story. In the play there is a suggestion of impossible flappers who do improbable things.

Corinne Griffith takes the leading part and is supported by Conway Tearle and several others. Miss Griffith gives an original rendition of the woman torn between counter emotions and the actions with which she expresses these emotions are convincing and only once does she make a stereotyped gesture. One cannot say as much for Conway Tearle. The supporting cast is quite large and is unusually good. The mob scene at the dockyard is well handled and is put on realistically. In fact the verisimilitude of this mob scene compares most favorably with that of some of the pictures of which the mob-scenes are the feature.

The only criticism which can be made is that the ending does not give the desired effect. One realizes that the Woman should go back and marry the Austrian Prince. For if she had married the playwright she would have been but a female and the purpose of her regeneration would have been defeated. And the obvious choice for any woman with the viewpoint of a sixty-five year-old, which is after all a very sane viewpoint, is a leading statesman and not an unknown playwright. But this is less a criticism than a justification and the key-note of "Black Oxen" is this half-comic-tragedy of things as they are.

It is almost a habit, it seems, to somewhat similar to a will? Some people, however, assert that resolutions should not be an annual affair but they should be made and lived up to before a new set is chosen. But, as the old sage says, custom is custom.

If you have already prepared your New Year's resolutions or are perhaps looking for some hints or advice, we would suggest that the first on the list be a motto. The one Abraham Lincoln used is probably the very best a student could possibly adopt, namely, "I will work and study, and perhaps some day my time will come."

Another valuable suggestion might be a determination to make the remaining years of college life at least a little more valuable than those that have passed.

Don'ts are also important and worth remembering, particularly when they concern some of our traits of character that have not yet been molded to permanent form. Don't resort to bad manners, bad habits, unwise decisions, laziness or even try to make any more enemies.

Resolve to make 1924 your banner year in every possible way. Your future depends upon the road you now plan to follow. Beware of the cross-roads and the curves! A good start will make the going easy. Start right.

Only a few, however, have had the opportunity of hearing something of the impressions, which were so intensely felt at this convention. An opportunity will be given to all the members of the R.V.C. next Thursday, by the S.C.A., to hear the reports of these delegates. As the conference this year, was particularly successful and the reports of special significance, it is earnestly hoped, that every student will avail herself of this opportunity.

Many different aspects will be dealt with, such as missions, the racial problem, war, and the Eastern questions. The following are the speakers: M. Cameron, '24; K. Dawson, '24; E. Baker, '25; W. Griffin, '24; I. Scriber, '27, and R. Copeland, M.S.P.E. '25.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear two of the delegates, Miss Griffin and Mr. McLeod, at Douglas Presbyterian church last Sunday evening, will not wish to miss this occasion to hear further details.

Tea will be served at the close of the meeting so everyone is assured of an interesting afternoon.

It is almost a habit, it seems, to somewhat similar to a will? Some people, however, assert that resolutions should not be an annual affair but they should be made and lived up to before a new set is chosen. But, as the old sage says, custom is custom.

If you have already prepared your New Year's resolutions or are perhaps looking for some hints or advice, we would suggest that the first on the list be a motto. The one Abraham Lincoln used is probably the very best a student could possibly adopt, namely, "I will work and study, and perhaps some day my time will come."

Another valuable suggestion might be a determination to make the remaining years of college life at least a little more valuable than those that have passed.

Don'ts are also important and worth remembering, particularly when they concern some of our traits of character that have not yet been molded to permanent form. Don't resort to bad manners, bad habits, unwise decisions, laziness or even try to make any more enemies.

Resolve to make 1924 your banner year in every possible way. Your future depends upon the road you now plan to follow. Beware of the cross-roads and the curves! A good start will make the going easy. Start right.

McGILL TO CLASH WITH FRENCHMEN

Both Teams Evenly Matched for To-morrow Night's Game

CUP DONATED

Senator Beaubien Presents Silver Trophy and Credits Added Interest

Tomorrow night at the Mount Royal Arena, the McGill senior hockey sextette will meet University of Montreal in their second game in the Intercollegiate League.

Varsity is leading the league with two wins and no losses to her credit, having beaten McGill here a week ago Saturday by the score of 5-1 and last Saturday blanking Queens 7-0.

Queens is next with one win and one loss to her credit, having taken a fall out of University of Montreal to the tune of 7-2.

McGill and the University of Montreal are now tied for the cellar position of the league and the teams seem to be about evenly matched, therefore tomorrow's game should be close and some interesting hockey should be provided.

The Frenchmen are handicapped by the loss of three of their best players last year, in the persons of Desbriens the flashy centre, and the two Lemaire brothers.

However the team has been strengthened by some new material and tomorrow's battle will no doubt be a closely fought one from advance indications.

In the person of Lajeunesse they have a fine goaler who turned in a stellar game at Kingston. Beaubien, one of their defense players, is a fine stickhandler and speedy skater while Lord, one of the wings, is a remarkably good checker.

It has been announced that neither of the regular McGill goalers will be able to play, both Morris and Joe Cameron being incapacitated by injuries received in the last game. However either Reid, who played goal for St. Andrew's Seniors, or Routledge who has been playing for the Intermediates will guard the McGill net tomorrow night. Both are good goalers and the team should not be materially weakened by the loss of the regulars.

All indications point to a really interesting and close game and added interest is attached to the battle by the fact that a silver cup has been donated by Senator Beaubien, to be given to the team which shows up best in the games between the two Montreal colleges.

If one team wins both the scheduled league games, a play off will not be necessary but in case of one win apiece, an exhibition game will be played to decide who will be the possessors of the trophy.

Keen rivalry already exists between these two teams and it will no doubt be increased by the donating of such a splendid cup for the victors.

Both teams are out to win and a brand of hockey should be displayed which will keep the spectators on edge during the sixty minutes of play. The McGill players received some valuable experience with Varsity and have bolstered up a number of weak points.

All preparations have been made and an exciting game is looked forward to. The Rooters Band will be out to supply music for the rosters.

ANTISEPTIC EFFECT ATTRIBUTED TO TOBACCO SMOKE

Pipe smokers have an advantage in health over men who do not smoke, according to an American doctor who saw service as a surgeon with the American Expeditionary Force, in the world war. "During the war," he says, "I was in charge of over 500 soldiers at a post with marshes nearby, and dysentery raged with virulence. I noticed that the heaviest smokers, who went about with pipes in their mouths, did not contract the disease. I smoked all the time and was free from it. So that smoking is in reality a great protective against disease."

According to the Pasteur Periodical, a magazine issued by the celebrated Pasteur Institute in Paris, tobacco smoke is highly antiseptic and kills in a few moments, the primary bacteria of cholera, diphtheria and cerebro-spinal meningitis.

SIR ARTHUR LAUDS Mcgill Rifle Club

Letter Received, Congratulating and Thanking the Club

A congratulatory letter has been received by the executive of the Rifle Club from Sir Arthur Currie, on regularity the Championship is the Intercollegiate Rifle Competition recently announced. This personal message which comes through Brig. Gen. H. S. Dickett, Honorary President of the club, will serve as a great incentive to further efforts towards keeping the trophy at McGill now that it has once more been established there. The members of the winning team appreciate deeply his thoughtfulness which but another expression of the marked interest he takes in all such student activities.

"My Dear General:—I was delighted to read in today's Daily that the team of the Rifle Association which represented McGill in the Intercollegiate Competition, won the cup by a handsome margin. We are all proud of this victory and I shall be glad if you will convey to the association and particularly to the team our warm congratulations and thanks.

Ever your faithfully
A. W. Currie."

measures for the prevention and combating of bush fires. The speaker appealed to his audience to use their personal influence in this good cause upon those in power and authority, and painted a dreary picture of the vast and desolation of a forest fire, which destroys the young growth, makes desolate a countryside, and ruins the fertility of the soil. The chief things needed, he stated, were a wider and more intensive publicity, a body of trained and competent fire fighters, and adequate capital to supply the requisite equipment—look-out towers, aeroplanes, telephones, and radio.

"We have received our forest heritage," concluded Mr. Wilson, "and we must hand it to our children, not lessened but increased."

Mr. Robson Black spoke of the economic loss that forest fires entail. "Trees are trade," he said, "and wood is the raw material not only of paper but of pay cheques. But we have six thousand forest fires a year; with these, beacon lights of Canadian prodigality we put a torch to Canadian prosperity and livelihood. Every conflagration must be paid for in forfeited industries, dwindling public revenues, and diminishing population."

In an account of the publicity and educational work of the Canadian Forestry Association, Mr. Black told of children of thirteen on the bare plains of the west who had never seen a tree, and to whom the gospel of tree-planting was being preached. "A secure forest is Canada's best industrial investment," said the speaker, "and forestry is not so much a profession as a national cause."

Professor Hosner of Cornell defined the purpose of forestry as the production of a sustained yield of wood, and stated that it is an art born of necessity, which aims at the perpetuation of the forest through wise use. At the conclusion of the addresses, a short time was devoted to discussion, and a vote of thanks having been tendered to the speakers the meeting adjourned.

S.C.A. MONTHLY GET-TO-GETHER

Those Interested in Activities to Meet at Hall Thursday Night

The January meeting of students and others who are interested in the S. C. A. will be held in the reading room, Strathcona Hall, next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

The purpose of these meetings is to bring together, once a month, all those who are interested in the work that is being carried on by the S. C. A. The meetings also afford an opportunity for students and professors to meet and exchange their views on the carrying on of the work. Considerable time will be occupied by the giving of reports by these in charge of the various departments, Strathcona Hall, bible and study groups etc., and it is the desire of the executive that anyone who has any helpful ideas on these matters will bring them along as all of them are needed.

A report will be made of the improvements that have been made at "the Hall" during the holidays and it is hoped that there will be some helpful discussion regarding the weekly slogs.

JUNIORS WIN GAME FROM WESTMOUNT

Entire Team Played Well With Cameron Starring

SCORE 7-0

Drop in Temperature Brought Good Ice But Few People

Putting up a splendid brand of hockey, the McGill Juniors last night overwhelmed the Westmount side by a 7-0 score at the Loyola rink. The men from Westmount, although they tried hard, were no match for the Collegians and McGill for the greater part of the game had the puck in their opponents' territory.

The whole McGill squad played fine hockey. Their team-work was good and their individual rushes were always dangerous. They should go far in the junior series this season. The heavy work of Cameron on the red and white forward line was outstanding, his passing being a feature of the play.

After Westmount had held the play even for the first few minutes of the opening period, McGill began to press and soon were keeping the puck in the white-coats' territory. BIGGGS

Very seldom did the Westmount men break away to attack the University's goal, and when they did their shots either went wide or were stopped by Johnson. Meanwhile the red and white squad were bombarding the Westmount nets and four times the puck went past the goal. Mickles and Abbott each scoring once, and Cameron twice. McGill kept up their attack to the end of the period.

The University squad opened the second fast and began once more to force the play. For a time Westmount came back strong and kept the puck in McGill's end but the red and white returned the attack and sent home their fifth corner.

From the face-off the play went back and forth, each side staging attacks, with McGill's the more dangerous. Westmount tried hard to break into the scoring column when for a time the University had but four men on the ice, but although fresh players were sent into the game they could not get through the McGill defence.

As the period drew to a close the red and white line swept down the ice again and again, and scored two goals in quick succession. They kept up their assault on the Westmount nets to the end of the game. Final score, 7-0.

The McGill-Westmount game was the third played on the Loyola rink last night, but the ice was in good shape due to the drop in temperature. A very small crowd was on hand to witness the contests.

There will be a full Junior practice next Thursday from six to seven at the Mount Royal Arena.

Last night the following men were on the ice for McGill.

Goal—Johnston.
Defence—Roncarelli, Mickles.
Forwards—Abbott (Captain) M. Cameron, Eveleigh, Fry, Macdonald.

WOULD HONOR SYSTEM WORK

One of the problems which confronts every University of today is the adoption of the so-called Honor System. This system is by no means a new idea and has already been adopted by several of the Pacific Coast Colleges, including California and Stanford. Whether or not the system is practical is sure to raise a storm of discussion pro and con although many men who make a study of college problems believe that the Universities will all be conducted under this system. At any rate it is a step forward toward the new standard of college life.

The actual practicability of this system, whereby the student in the one who prevents cheating instead of having a faculty representative on the job during examination, has been proved by Stanford and to a lesser extent by California. Both of these institutions have been successful in carrying out the Honor system although the Southern Branch seems to have a good deal of difficulty in getting under way.

The fact that under this system a student is supposed to get up and announce that there is cheating going on seems to be the chief stumbling block for those who don't favor the idea. They claim that this fosters "snitching" and gives opportunity for the venting of personal spite. In reality, the student does not get up and announce the name of the one who is cheating. He merely says that cheating is going on and unless this stops at once he will be forced to give the name of the cheat or cheaters. In most cases, this one warning is sufficient and only in a few cases has it been found necessary to give any names.

On the other hand, when students have once gotten the idea that they are not defending the faculty by "snitching" during exams they begin to realize that after all cheating is not a very pleasant thing to do.

TEMPLE WILL HAVE COLLEGE SERVICE

Friday Jan. 25th. Reserved for McGill Night

On Friday January 25th, a College Service is being held at Temple Emmanuel—4128 Sherbrooke St.

This College Service is known as "McGill" night and is unique in no much that although it is being held under the auspices of the Temple it is being conducted by, for and with college men.

Dr. Merrill has turned the pulpit and the Temple over to the Collegians and will sit as a member of the congregation.

H. J. Seman, Senior Law, will deliver the Sermon entitled "The College Man's Religion." It is expected to be a real portrait of the College man, his religion, his views and his religious ideals.

Harry Covel, Medicine will conduct the Services, and Theodore Friedman will act as Usher-in-Chief, assisted by other College Students.

Dr. Merrill extends a cordial invitation to all McGill and it is hoped that a large number of College Students will attend. The invitation runs to men of all creeds, of all faiths, of all religions.

GOVERNMENT TO HOLD MEETING TO-MORROW

Preparations are well under way for the next sitting of the Mock Parliament, one week from to-day. In view of the success of the last session, the next meeting should be well attended and much interest should be evinced. The Hon. Hugson, graduate of McGill and Oxford, who presided at the last meeting, will act in a similar capacity again. At the same time it is to be observed that a great air of secrecy enshrouds the preparations of the parliamentarians. Things are being done a hush cios. However, Wells, the leader of the Government, goes so far as to state that he can make public nothing until after the meeting of the Government to-morrow evening.

down to study. Moreover, public opinion has a great deal to do with it and does not favor unfair copying during examinations and "refuse to give assistance to those who wish to cheat." The cheaters soon adopt the prevalent opinion. About half of those who "crib" do so because they consider it the usual thing, and some even because they fear to be considered prudes if they refuse to help cheating.

The Honor System is largely a matter of attitude. There is no reason why it should fail although it may take several years to re-educate the students' mind to the new system. One of the greatest faults of the present educational system is the fact that all through grammar and high school students are given the impression, somehow, that by cheating they are merely "putting one over" on the faculty. This is of course, not only untrue but foolish.

WOOD-CUTS EXHIBITED AT MUSEUM

Development of Art in Different Countries Strikingly Shown

VARIED EFFECTS

Old Masterpieces Tell Picturesque Tales Carved in Wood

The exhibition of wood cuts in the museum of the library has been greatly augmented since before Christmas, and is now complete. These wood cuts are exceedingly interesting as they show the development of the art in Germany, France, Italy, England and Japan. The collection is very extensive, ranging from early German woodcuts of the 14th century to the most modern work of England and France.

Dr. G. R. Lomer has arranged the collection in order to illustrate the technique, history and resources of woodcuts. In the first of the twelve cases, the method of preparing woodcuts, with the necessary tools and brushes, is shown, as well as several beautiful variations of a print by Prof. Traquair, "The Salmon Pool." The same blocks used with various colours show the pool in morning mist and afternoon sunshine. Japanese work comes next, showing the progress of this art in the far East. Perhaps, the most interesting exhibit is that of block books. These were books whose leaves were printed from wooden blocks on which both text and illustrations were cut. They were originally issued separately, and then gradually arranged in quires. As they were chiefly pictures of saints, they were given to pilgrims by the monks of various monasteries. This custom is still continued by certain monasteries on Mt. Athos. A facsimile of a curious old Bible, illustrated with woodcuts for the instruction of the poor and ignorant, is also shown.

Germany, the early centre of the art, is well represented in the collection by the Derchan prints; 130 copies of 54 old prints were made by a German in 1922, from the actual McGill is fortunate enough to be in possession of one of the 130 impressions. A particularly valuable cup is a representation of the Crucifixion, illuminated and printed on vellum by Lucas of Cranach, (1472-1551). It is one of the exquisitely coloured woodcuts in the Uffizi, Florence, 1523, a rare volume in the original pigskin printed for the Hohenzollern Church.

Italian art is represented by beautiful red-and-white minuscule. A highly printed book of the collection, "The Dream of Poliphilus," is considered the most beautiful volume ever printed in Venice. It dates from 1499, when it was presented to the Duke of Urbino.

From France are beautiful cuts illuminated on vellum in several books of the Hours. Modern French art is shown in the coloured cuts produced during the Great War and lent by Professor Traquair. The English collection is noteworthy for several ancient woodcuts in Bibles, and for six from blocks cut and designed by Robert Louis Stevenson.

The exhibit closes at the end of March.

INFORMAL SMOKER HELD BY C.O.T.C.

Sir Arthur Distributed Certificates Earned by Members

"There is no phase of activity more pregnant with possibilities than the C. O. T. C.," said General Sir Arthur Currie to a large number of C. O. T. C. men who gathered in the Union at an informal smoker.

Colonel Thompson acted as chairman and among those at the table were Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Col. Bovey and Major Forbes. Col. Thompson regretted the loss of Major Howard as second in command and welcomed Major Stewart Forbes in his place. He also announced the trips for the coming session and that winter headgear would soon be issued. He expressed the desire that every cadet would see to his military classification and that would be a large entry for the coming examinations.

The next speaker was Col. Bovey who said that as an officers training unit the McGill C. O. T. C. was not inferior to the R. M. C. He pointed out that his corps was not for training of officers for the permanent force but for militia officers. He closed with a few words of praise for the Canadians, and he also mentioned particularly the 52nd Lowland Division with which Col. Thompson was connected.

Major Forbes spoke a few words pointing out that college students make the best officers. He also mentioned the air force, training at Camp Borden to which cadets only are admitted.

A troupe of four able musicians provided the lighter side of the entertainment and after supper was served everybody joined in the singing.

General Sir Arthur Currie then distributed the certificates earned by members of the corps last year, congratulating the winners and complimenting them on their continued fine showing.

DR. H. M. AMI TO LECTURE BEFORE CLUB

ish Embassy at Washington, D. C. Dr. Ami has received several honorary degrees and has been made a member of the Paleontological and Geological Societies of London, Switzerland, and America. He has published numerous reports and monographs, and from 1895 to 1900 he edited the Ottawa Naturalist. He is a member of the Royal Society.

Dr. Ami spent part of last summer reviewing discoveries of remains of prehistoric man in caves of central France. Actual remains of men, drawings, and rough statuary of mammoths, antediluvian horses, bears, and musk-oxen have been unearthed in strata, which geologists state to be approximately thirty thousand years old. It is on these discoveries that Dr. Ami is to base his lecture.

BARON BYNG SPOKE ABOUT BOY SCOUTS

Meeting of Students Interested in Scouting Held in Union

NEED OF IDEALS

Students Urged to Take Interest in Movement

"Everyone has ideals, whether he admits it or not, and we should put the boy scout movement on the same plane as our ideals of religion and our conception of the League of Nations" was the text of the address given by His Excellency, Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada and Visitor of McGill University.

The meeting of the McGill students who are interested in scouting, was held yesterday afternoon in the Union. At five o'clock yesterday between fifty and seventy-five students met in the Ball Room of the Union to listen to a talk on scouting by Lord Byng.

The King's representative was introduced by Sir Arthur Currie, who said it was his belief that, if our young boys are taken care of, there should be no need of bothering with the grown-ups.

Lord Byng said that ideals should include not only Christianity and the League of Nations but also the boy scout movement, as we see it in England and Canada. He spoke of the need of all whose governments have endorsed the League, to support the League of Nations and to hold it as an ideal.

Previous schemes for peace have failed simply on account of their lack of popular support. "To make young Canada better" is similarly an ideal which everyone of his hearers, said Baron Byng, may entertain, and which he can realize.

The founder of the movement organized a small group of boys, and he soon saw the possibilities of the expansion of the organization, provided he could secure enough scout-masters to carry on the work; this great ideal emphasized the twofold need of a Christian spirit and a citizen spirit, to which Lord Byng wished to add the Canadian spirit, in the present connection.

The activities of the boy scouts were interrupted by the Great War, which required the service of practically all the scout-masters and a great many scouts. Since then the former enthusiasm and vigor have returned—there has been a renaissance of effort towards a widening of the scope of the movement. He said that he wanted young men of student age to become interested in scouting not necessarily becoming scout-masters, since a young man, by merely associating himself with a group of boys, could do untold good in the way of Canadianization and the cultivation of ideals.

Perhaps many young men do not realize their capabilities in this respect, but every student, no matter for what profession he is preparing, has some hobby or branch of learning in which he excels, and he could do much good by making this interesting and explaining it in easily understandable language for the young boys put in his charge. There is no better age than that of most university men for appealing to boys between the age of nine and sixteen.

Baron Byng is going to conduct a three week's course for scout-masters at Ottawa. There will be two representatives from each province. There will be an opportunity for an interchange of ideas, suggestions, and queries between men interested in the same end from different parts of a vast country. The Governor General concluded his speech by thanking his hearers for having taken the trouble to appear at this rather impromptu gathering.

The meeting was preceded by tea, which was served by some of the students, and closed with three cheers for His Excellency and the McGill yell. Besides Baron Byng and Sir Arthur there were at the meeting Col. Bovey, Dr. Lamb, and Professor Evans.

THE IMPERIAL

Sparkling wit, clever repartee, pretty songs, graceful dances, and some acrobatic stunts all combine to make this week's program at the Imperial Theatre one of exceptional interest. The feature picture, "To The Ladies," with an all star cast, is a very entertaining comedy designed to impress upon all members of the stronger sex their utter inability to cope with the problems of the world without the help of their wives.

Frank and Eddie Monroe in the role of two hoboes disport themselves upon a spring mattress, bouncing sky high, and performing all sorts of stunts while in the air.

Kessler and Morgan in a short skit display some real musical ability, and at the same time prove themselves clever actors and agile dancers. The inimitable pair, Fisher and Hurst, put on a couple of rollicking scenes full of joy and laughter.

The most charming number on the program is that in which Miss Charlotte Lansing treats the audience with a number of her prettiest songs. Her enjoying personality, and her clear soprano voice, coupled with excellent music make it a most delightful exhibition.

Wilbur Mack as a love specialist who realize his power raises many a laugh by his conceit. Supported by an able company he shows how even a professional can be fooled sometimes.

Bobby Randall concludes a well rounded program with some songs and a few confidential talks about his own experiences.

comment made by Dr. Cattell, the new President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, concerning the present-day "tests." They predict, he says, what a boy can do even more accurately than what he will do.

Professor James indicated the untapped powers within reach of most individuals who fail to realize their capacities, being discouraged in their effort like a runner who stops before he sets his second wind. The psychologist of today is disclosing the energy concealed within us as well as revealing the barren stretches and avoiding wasteful prospecting in these mental areas. His science is bringing to use the "untouched stock of mental capital," and to enriching the life not of the individual but also of the race. It is an encouraging diagnosis made by one of these psychologists that the highest type of intelligence is increasing and the lowest type diminishing. This may not be evidence that a "new era is now at hand," as one of these practical psychologists infers, but at any rate it implies that most men can do more. The unanswered question is whether they will.

"Here's where the rub comes," said the wash-woman as she leaned over her scrub board.
